

Abstract

The modules will provide the basic concept of cloud computing and related services, giving an overview of the virtualization concepts and related technologies.

The course will also provide hands-on activities and tutorial sessions related to the above arguments aiming to give the students a basic knowledge on how to interact with the presented infrastructures and technologies.